Germany's Army Sensation

When Chancellor Caprivi, desiring to arouse the patriotism of the legislators of the empire, reminded them that Germany is not so strong as it was after the war with France, he little expected that confirmation would come so swiftly and in so humiliating a form. This confirmation is found in the statement, seemingly well supported, that the Lowe gun is a useless weapon. The portent of this exposure lies in the fact that more than 400,000 of these guns are in use in the German army, perhaps it would be better to say, ready for use

If all that is said about the gun be true, there is a terrible hole in the German military establishment. The danger is to some extent removed by the discovery, for Germany will no longer rely on a useless weapon. There will, of course, be deeper probing, to see how far this rottenness extends.

It is interesting to recall that when France provoked war with Germany she thought she was ready. She had a had a superb military establishment on paper. When the struggle came the splendid establishment did not materialize. Troops were quickly mobilized, but there was lack of guns, ammunition and clothing that had been paid for, and where there was not fraud there was hopeless confusion. The real situation was not revealed in time.

Germany to-day, although mortified and in the midst of a great scandal, is in much better luck. Being at peace she can prepare for war.

The passengers on the Spree got to praying in dead earnest when they though the ship was going down, and some of them made a poor first of it. It doesn't do to put off learning how until a critical moment arrives.

Japanese Should Eat Meat.

It seems that the mikado of Japan has had on his thinking-cap and come to the conclusion that the interesting people of his fairy realm are lacking in stature and robustness. After the fashion of an old-time oriental monarch he might have had them drawn out to make them taller and stuffed out to make them broader.

But in these days they are playing at constitutional government in Japan, and so there is a parliamentary commission or something of that sort, and a recommendation. It is discovered that a people cannot become physically diet of rice fish and atmosphere; wherefore it is officially recommended that they eat meat and see what that will do for them.

One would have to understand the nice shadings of the Japanese tongue to know precisely whether this is a mere recommendation or a command with a harikari attachment. Be this as it may, the gentle Japanese are hereby cordially welcomed to the ranks of the meat-eating millions with the provisory hope that they may find in our thoroughbred hog all that their fastidious taste may demand.

Mr. BLAINE's health continues to improve. Long may he be spared to the country of which he is so distinguished an ornament.

Republicans Can't Be Worked. There is one thing that will not happen at this session of Congress. Republicans will not help Democrats out of any tariff or other hole.

In the next session Republicans will be in a minority in Congress and the Democrats will have, or think they will have, the President. That will give the Democrats the chance they long have sought, to impress themselves upon the history of the country.

If they cannot wait for the regular session they have it in their power to call an extra session, if they can get the President-elect to agree with them. Having things their own way they should be happy. If they cannot also be successful they will have to settle that account with the country.

Settling day comes quickly after election day, so fast time flies.

To-DAY the President will send in his message to Congress. To-morrow the INTELLIGENCER will print it, and it will be as good reading as the American people are likely to get for several years. The President's state papers have been models.

STUDENTS who sail in promisculously to smash things, as the Yale hoodlums have been doing, need to be taught a lesson which the authorities of all college towns are slow to teach. It may er induced him and two other men to be granted that "boys will be boys," go to Evansville and vote the Republified on the Republified on the Republified of the Republified on the Republ but this does not license young men to be marauders of the first class. It may be thought an awful thing to say, but these miscreants would profit by a few months in jail.

Hard Lines for Mr. Cleveland. The Hill-Murphy-Tammany combine is determined to make life a burden for

Mr. Cleveland. He hates the men who helped him to carry New York, and they despise him. It turns out that he could have been elected without them, but this is not all. He would like to have peace with his own party through his administration, but he wants peace on his own terms. He particularly does not want Murphy in the senate to stand in with Hill and knock his appointments in the head. The little matter of "senatorial courtesy" will give them practically a veto power on his New York appointments, and this would be sour gruel for Mr. Cleveland to swallow.

What can the huntsman of Hog Island do about it? The Hill crowd can make a senator to suit themselves, and if they knew of a man who would be more distasteful than Murphy, they would probably throw him at the President-elect and let him make the Cleveland Democrats profess to think this very bad, not to say mean, politics. Well, the other fellows have not pretended to be treading the higher levels in patent leather pumps, have they?

It is a mistake to suppose that Congress is opened with an oyster knife. The proceeding is as gentle as rolling off a log.

Better Local Government.

A Pittsburgh minister, preaching on the social evil sensation in that city, says that "laws should be enacted giving women all the privileges that men now have." No specifications are given.

How much more would new laws avail than the old ones which are not enforced and which public sentiment does not compel the officers of the law to enforce? It is useless to try to dodge this question and all that hangs on it.

In a free country the people may have what laws they will and have them enforced. It is a matter of public opinion. If public opinion consents to the violation of law the laws will be violated and the officers of the law will look to the violators for their support. If public opinion insists that officers of the law shall discharge their duties the duties will be discharged.

A few people do not constitute public sentiment, nor can the many, however well disposed, be said to stand for public sentiment unless they take the field and make themselves seen and heard and felt. The lawbreaker does not care if nine men out of ten in his community are against him so long so they keep quiet about it.

When good citizens have as much courage as the bad we may hope to see better local government. We could have much better in Wheeling and still fall far short of the ideal.

THE ducks of Hog Island have peace but the tiger of Tammany growleth and wheteth his teeth.

The Huffy Italians. The Italian consul general thinks he has a grievance because a subject of his most gracious sovereign was kitled in Columbus while resisting arrest.

The Italians should, of course, be treated as well as anybody else, but it happens that Italy does not favor us with the flower of her people. The average run of Italians in this country does not make the American heart ache for more of the same kind.

If American ways do not suit our friends in and from Italy they may easily remedy the matter by remaining in their own sunny clime, where the skies are always blue and the people a good deal that way themselves.

WHAT'S this? Ex-Governor Campbell much closer to Mr. Cleveland than Senator Brice? Before Mr. Cleveland goes far he may be glad to make room for Senator Brice. The Ohio senator has brains and nerve, which may be handy for President Cleveland to have around.

Trus much may be said of Jay Gould, there is not likely to be any scandal over his estate. No second family will turn up, and his grown, sons will step into the places their father prepared for them. This will be quite unlike the trail some other rich men have left.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

C. J. Ennis, 86 years of age, a veteran of the Mexican war, was married to Elizabeth Baccus, aged 77 years, at San Antonio, Tex., last week. Ennis re-ceives a monthly stipend of $8 from the government. In gratitude to the wo-man who nursed him, for several years, and who is now his wife, he desired the marriage to take place so that she will receive his pension after his death. He is in a critical condition.

The problem of how to serve celery The problem of how to serve celery, has been solved, at lengt temporarily, in the prevailing fashion of laying two or three choice stalks at the side of each plate. Nobody regretted the tirement of the tail celery vases, but the flat dishes were about equally awkward and inconvenient. The present idea is sensible and satisfactory, and should be preserved.—New York Times.

MRS. LEASE'S CANDIDACY.

Mrs. Lease has sald these words: "I will most certainly enter the race for the senatorship and make a test case of it." When a woman talks like that it safe to say that something will be heard to drop within a brief space of time.—St. Paul Dispotch.

WISE WOMEN.

They Are All the More Attractive and rming Because They are Wise and

Who is a wise woman? She is one who knows nerself, knows what she requires, and governs nerself accordingly. She may realize that she is not so young as formerly, that possibly her complexion is not so fine, her health so good, but if she is a wise woman, she takes steps to preserve her health, keep her complexion an remain rosy and bright, even with advancing years. It is true she cannot do this unaided: it is true, that she needs assistance and requires friend in need. That friend must be something that can restore all these fading qualities; it must be some gentle stimulant taken in moderation. But what? There is but one. The only medicinal stimulant which is specially de-signed for ladies is Dufy's Pure Mait Whiskey. These are dot idle words, but truths which have been proved by the happiness and health of thousands of women in all parts of America. Promittant hadiss admit this, and they do not hesitate to say that as a medicinal stimulant Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a godsend to any woman. It is the realization of these things that makes the wise; it is the neglect of these things that constitutes the foolish woman. It should be carefully borne in mind, however, that no other whiskey is medicinal or furnishe the qualities required for preserving the life and bringing health.

JAY GOULD'S FUNERAL

Only Invited Friends Present-The Ser vices at the Mansion.

New York, Dec. 5.—Not a single incident happened last night to ruffle the wearisome vigil of the central office detectives who are detailed to watch the Gould mansion until after the funeral. A man from the undertaker's estab-lishment kept guard over the remains of the dead millionaire all last night. The body reposed in a malogany ice chest, which was covered with black pall, and which in turn was heaped with flowers. By 10 o'clock the representatives of the city's wealth were moving down town. Pedestrians stopped and gazed inquisitively at the chill ceber currians and mentally tried dull ochre curtains and mentally tried to pierce the shadows within. On the west side of the avenue a dozen or more men stamped their feet on the pavenent in the effort to keep warm, and i is a notable fact that of this number at least one-third were chips on the ocean of life, men whose unkempt beards and summer attire were strikingly out of place in this centre of wealth and fashion.

At 10:15 o'clock Undertaker Main's

canopied wagon came to a halt in front of the main entrance and the driver and his assistant quickly hur-ried in with a score of folding chairs. It was the first of many similar journeys. It was about this time several ventures some persons on curiosity bent rang the bell of Mr. Edwin Gould's house the bell of Mr. Edwin Golid's house snd requested permission to see the re-mains, but the butler politely told them that intimate friends of the family would alone be admitted. The first ar-rivals of prominent out of town per-sons were at 7:45 this morning, when the following gentlemen stepped from their private car which was attached to the western express of the New York the western express of the New York Central railroad: W. B. Doddridge, general manager of the St. Louis & Southwestern road; George C. Smith, southwestern road; ceorge C. Smith, assistant general manazer; C. G. Warner general auditor; D. S. H. The first symptoms are a dry loud cough and sneezing. The cough is soon followed by watery expectoration and the sneezing by a profuse watery discharge from the nose. In severe cases there is a thin white coating on the tongue. What to do? It is only necessary to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in double doses every hour.
